WHO IS A WOMAN! Prof. Sultana Hazarika

When she is quiet, millions of things are running through her mind. When she stares at you, she is wondering why she loves you so much in spite of being taken for granted. When she says I will stand by you, she will stand by you like a solid rock. Never hurt her or take her for granted. A very heart touching message by a woman.

Someone asked her, Are you a working woman or a housewife? She replied: Yes, I am a full-time working housewife. I work 24 hours a day. I'm a Mum. I'm a Wife. I'm a Daughter. I'm a Daughter-in-law. I'm an Alarm clock. I'm a Cook. I'm a Maid. I'm a Teacher. I'm a Waitress. I'm a Nanny. I'm a Nurse. I'm a Handywoman. I'm a Security officer. I'm a Counsellor. I'm a Comforter. I don't get holidays. I don't get sick leave. I don't get day off. I work through day and night. I'm on call all hours and get paid with a sentence. "What Do U Do All Day??"

The above statement is a fact for every women, rich or poor educated or uneducated. Actually she is a fulltime soldier of the society. And In return she donot have the recognition of her position and secrifieses. But she never mind. She do her duty with out expecting any return.

A Woman has the most unique character like salt! Her presence is never remembered, but her absence makes all the things tasteless. Salute to all the women.

A RELOOK ON INDIAN WOMEN IN THE 21ST CENTURY

Dr. Sashikanta Saikia

Principal, DHSK College, Dibrugarh

The Indian women have passed a long way of struggle to gain social, political and economic equality. The struggle is still continuing. Women are the best gift of God with the power of creating life. Historical studies indicate that there was a dominant position of women in India before Later Vedic period. The people of Indus Valley Civilization worshipped Mother Goddess, symbolizing fertility. There are enormous evidences of worship of deities like Durga, Saraswati, Lakshmi etc. In that society women had the power of decision making in both private and public life. One of the important beliefs of that society was that divinity could be imagined in a feminine form. With the advent of the later Vedic period, woman was assigned a position subordinate to man. The Brahmanical law and religion did not recognize the equality and equal rights of man and woman. Since the later Vedic period the removal of disabilities of the Indian woman and their freedom from various forms of oppression has been processing. If we look back to the days of India's freedom movement it will be noticed that a large number of women came out by breaking some barriers of the society to take dominant role in the anti-imperialist movement. Mahatma Gandhi had immense faith upon the powers of woman. He invoked and redefined certain female characters from Hindu mythology who embodied the virtues, to encourage the woman to fight for nationalist cause. According to him, woman is the noblest of God's creation, supreme in her own sphere of activity. But did they get an equal power and freedom after independence, it needs to be examined. The most important question is that what happens to the woman and to the gender relations in these groups after the immediate goals are achieved. It is true that there was a little progress in a patriarchal society, but the independence movement had explored their mental strength and their organizing capability.

In a hierarchical society like India, it is a traditional view that woman make sacrifices, so the people around can leave and love peacefully. At present a few urban and rural educated women introduced themselves as emancipated, enlightened and progressive. Sometimes, it is tried to define the position of woman in India by counting only a small group of emancipated women. In many parts of India like Bihar, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh the concept of higher education for women is far from their society. In the 21th century also, the social system of some of these particular areas are compelled to think that the birth of a girl child is a curse for their lives. The literacy report of woman in 2011 reinforce the inequality because it is 65.46% against the 82.16% of man. It is generally a traditional belief that the women are not secure in an industrial and business sector. But the question is, they are insecure from whom either from the natural environment or from the social environment which is created by man. Then the right answer is the social environment is insecure for them. Because, the natural environment does not differentiate man and woman in any condition. It is equal for both.

In spite of a number of obstacles in their path of success we observe remarkable achievements that have been done by woman ranging from science and technology, engineering, medical science, space astronomy, sport, art and culture, defense politics and from banking to agriculture. There is a long history of many women with inherited wealth establishing large enterprise or launching successful career in their own right. Woman in contemporary India is doing the same what a male can do. At present an increasing number of women are also entering in regional and national politics.

The status of woman reflects fundamentally the standard of social political and economic justice in the society. Thus, Jawaharlal Nehru once told that 'we can define the condition of a nation by looking at the status of woman'. After passing many golden and dark days, the woman of India seems to be on the path to empowerment although with a slow pace.

The programme was graced by Prof. Kumkum Chakraverty, Prof J.P. Phukon, Dr. Nirmali Pegu, Secretary, Womens cell, ACTA. The vote of thanks were given by Dr. Nitumoni Saikia.
